

Stay safer together!

Looking for ways to make gatherings and events safer?

These steps can reduce your risk of getting and spreading respiratory illnesses like COVID-19 and flu.

3 weeks before event	<ul style="list-style-type: none">✓ Make sure everyone eligible has gotten a flu shot and is up-to-date on COVID-19 vaccines (including a bivalent booster)
The week before event	<ul style="list-style-type: none">✓ Wear a high quality mask when out✓ Use rapid at-home COVID tests: test 2 days before the event and the morning of the event to be safest
Day of event	<ul style="list-style-type: none">✓ If you have symptoms, stay home and away from others✓ Do what you can to increase ventilation: meet outside or open windows and run fans if inside
After the event	<ul style="list-style-type: none">✓ If someone has symptoms or gets sick, have them talk to a doctor right away about treatment options. Treatments are available for both flu and COVID that can help lower the chances of severe illness.* *This is especially important for high risk people, which includes anyone not up-to-date on COVID-19 vaccines (including a bivalent booster), 50+ years old, and/or not very physically active.
